Joseph Carringer has been playing an Australian Aboriginal didgeridoo for over a decade -- using it as a deep meditative tool to aid in his personal shamanic journey. In addition to playing the didgeridoo, he has received a Reiki Master's apprenticeship over a decade ago and has studied advanced Qi Gong and Shamanic healing techniques. Currently, he sits on the Executive Board as a founding member of the New England Seacoast Holistic Health Association.

Joseph feels a deep natural connection with the healing of our planet and ourselves. It is his goal to help people realign their bodies' natural rhythms on a cellular level through harmonic therapy. He believes that through this work, people can achieve a greater sense of natural health and open doors for a higher sense of creativity and consciousness.
